press, that is destined to more than a temporary success. It is not only well written, but portrays life and character with the hand of a master. The Publishers confidently commend it to hand of a master. The Publishers confidently commend it to their friends and patrons.

From The New-York Evening Post.

"Three good novels have been issued this Spring. Two of the English. The third novel to which we refer is, strange to say, an American novel. Commonly, American novels are very dull, very untrue, and very crude; but 'Rutledge' is an exception. It is animated, truthful, and full of originality and thought. Each town and country are described with rare power of observation and skill. If we mistake not, this work is DESTINED TO PRODUCE AN UNUSUAL SENSATION, and the author may congratulate himself or herself (for we suspect the writer to be a weman) on a most successful beginning of a literary cureer."
